Policy RECommendations for Open Access to Research Data in Europe

RECODE KICKED OFF IN LONDON 11 FEBRUARY 2013

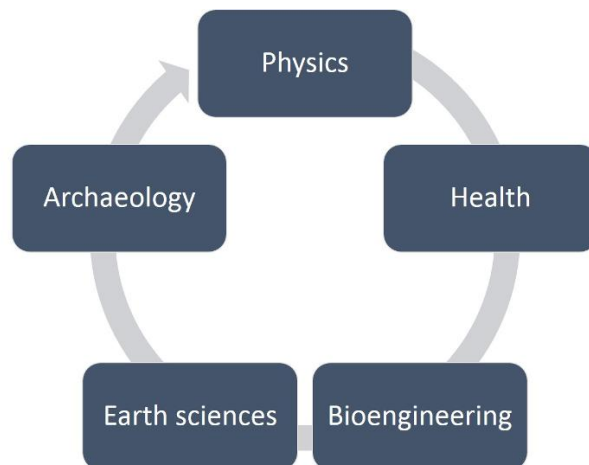

RECODE (Policy RECommendations for Open Access to Research Data in Europe) held its kick off meeting in London on the 11th February 2013. This newly funded project by the European Commission under the 7th Framework Programme aims to leverage existing networks, communities and projects to address challenges within the open access and data dissemination and preservation sector and produce policy recommendations for open access to research data based on existing good practice.

5 case studies

A central component of the RECODE project is the use of five case studies to assist with its analysis and subsequent recommendations.

Further information regarding the case studies can be found on our website.

Workshop: 4 September 2013

Join us!

RECODE will hold its first workshop, "Perspectives in understanding open access to research data: stakeholder values and motivations in research ecosystems" on the 4th September 2013 at the University of Sheffield. The workshop will present key findings from a review of policy and related documents about Open Access and findings from 5 case studies of research practice. It will also discuss the findings with stakeholders to assess their significance for policy development and for research practice. Registration is now open.

Further information, including the agenda and details on how to register can be found via our events page.

Other RECODE events

RECODE team members are also involved in a number of upcoming conferences including; 17th International Conference on Electronic Publishing (Elpub), Open Access Monographs in the Humanities and Social Sciences Conference (British Library), 4th International Symposium on Information Management in a Changing World (IMCW) and the MedOANet final conference.
